

Conduct a brief interview with someone you know who is established in their career (has been working full-time for at least 5 years). Ask them the following questions and record their answers here.

Question 1: Has there been a time where miscommunication cost your company money? What happened?

Question 2: Do you think that your co-workers or supervisors have good communication skills?

Question 3: How often do you give presentations or speak to groups larger than 5 people?

Question 4: Did you take a public speaking or other communication class? If so, do you feel like it has been useful? If not, do you wish that you had?
